PRODUCTION PROCESS

PURE BRASS

Raw Material

The making of a faucet has many steps and every manufacturing stage is quality controlled. Every stage is important because the quality of the final product rests on the performance of the preliminary steps. So, creating the 'chassis' or foundation of a faucet is as crucial as the final finish. Our faucet bodies are made of the purest possible Brass. Brass, which an alloy of copper and zinc, is resistant to soft-water corrosion and hard-water calcification making it the perfect metal for a faucet body.

CORE SHOOTER

PA core is a device used in casting and moulding processes to produce internal cavities and re-entrant angles. The core is normally a disposable item that is destroyed to get it out of the piece. They are most commonly used in sand casting, but are also used in injection moulding. Cores are useful for features that cannot tolerate draft or to provide detail that cannot otherwise be integrated into a core-less casting or mould. The only disadvantage is the additional cost to incorporate (manufacture) cores.

CASTING

cut from high-quality brass rods or its shape is achieved through die casting using state-of-the-art technology. We use imported gravity die casting machines, which are unparalleled when it comes to achieving construction quality. Die-cast bodies are made by melting brass at high temperatures 1150°C and pouring it into moulds of the desired shape. These moulds are such that there is little aberration in the shape of a faucet. This is a must to ensure that the final finish is smooth as a mirror with true reflection.

MACHINING

After die casting comes the process of machining. This is also computer controlled process. Our cutting-edge machining process ensures that the die casted product has all its surfaces finished to a high degree of smoothness. The internal water passage ways are also smoothened for better performance during machining.

GRINDING AND POLISHING

Only after the brass surfaces are polished to technical precision can the product be sent out to chrome plating. Unless the polishing is perfect the faucet will not get that shine that we look for in every high quality product. For that perfect finish, polishing is carried out through a combination of manual and machine driven processes. For high-end and niche faucets the polishing is done by experienced artisans. Senior polishing technicians work exclusively on our pride-of-place range. These technicians understand exactly how much pressure to apply at what points to ensure that a Belgian mirror-like finished surface is realized after chrome plating, work exclusively on our pride-of-place range.

ELECTROPLATING

Every faucet and mixer system created by TRESKO undergoes a chrome plating technique that greatly enhances durability of the product. We proudly use German speciality chemicals ATOTECH on our plating lines. The chrome finish is so fine that it ages very slowly. Hence each box is labelled BRILLIANT CHROME for you to enjoy your faucet.

TESTING

Every faucet and bath system created and crafted undergoes a rigorous testing process on both water and compressed air. We take pride in saying – each faucet that gets shipped out of the manufacturing facility is tested on imported machine physically by a trained technician, off Course with this conviction do we offer a 7 year warranty on our products

LAZER MARKING

Imported machine performs contactless on perfectly engineered faucets to carry the bold TRESKO emblem to stay with you forever. These machines operate on the computerised programing and functions and have a fibre optic mechanism to perform the job. This type of equipment is also used by renowned luxury watch maker, jewellers and our personal favourite the Apple iPhone.

RAND

Designing fittings that shape water are efficient and bring the experience to life: this is something we are able to achieve by combining a variety of skills. Each TRESKO™ fitting is made up of the latest technology, recognised design skills and last but not least the excellent craftsmanship of our designers and engineers. The end products are highly functional and provide added emotional value within the overall effective design.
